How do individuals maintain core purpose and integrity in the face of dramatically changed circumstances?

The global pandemic of COVID-19 offers both challenges and opportunities. When faced with a crisis, most organisations choose to focus on leadership at the level of managing groups and teams. In this webinar, we choose instead to put our focus at the level of the individual. At the Center for Creative Leadership (CCL) we know personal development and leadership transformation go hand in hand. We need to begin with the most obvious source... Yourself

Specific objectives for webinar include:
- Gain perspective on the changes we experience
- Build knowledge on the 3 core elements of self-leadership
- Provide practical tools, tips and suggestions for activating these elements
- Foster connection in the group through the many challenges we have in common